Having a 3-member core next to a haris also feels more viable now that there are fewer incentives to maximize the equipment. Do you have a link to the new graphics of the fire team? The seminar is on YouTube as well. Also. You can understand how exaggerated I am for the game of Fantasia Corvus Belli plastic. Because positioning and movement play such an important role in the game, and because Infinity tends to be a game of multiple soft counters instead of hard counters, the power disparities are not always as pronounced as they are in some other games. Damn The Adepticon Seminar! For more than two things: - Haqq vs Steel Falange box for code one. Said all this, all this could come out the window literally tomorrow after the updates of the Fireteam Rules. This can take us back to the most homogenic links of "pain train" as we used to see in N3, but at the same time some of the lists were built thinking about the heavy mix and may end up submerging in due power To this (unfortunately, it seems that IA had a little success in that sense since its best links made a great use of wildcards). Page 2 Sã, I'm impressed, the fire teams have become flexible, but also far from "1 great type with 4 fools". Things like a Kamau or Haidao in a Fireteam area are still good, but less oppressive. 1) How much do meat really matter in infinity? Edition 1 - In addition, I almost did not designed, but Zhanshi are AVA5 in White Banner. Melee rarely is your "plan A" but she can be a very useful part of your toolbox, she ignores many penalties that apply to the shot, and can be used inside Smoke and Eclipse. As you can not play a gender feat and have fire equipment, what bring to the table has to be carefully balanced so that 'vanilla' lists do not become traps that only use rookies or veterinarians trying Play in hard mode. Balance is largely good. Melee is rarely your "plan a" but it can be a very part from your toolbox, ignore many penalties that apply to shooting, and can be used inside Smoke and Eclipse. I'm SO excited about this. 2) Are LABELS good overall? You have so much agency and ability to control situational modifiers and try to get the best oddsA and sometimes you just have to up and trust in the dice! So this dropped in today's Raveneye video, Ariadna finally got their TAG! Mmm, not sure how I feel about it I like it looks very different from other humanoid TAGs, which I think fits Ariadna technology, but not sure I wanted a TAG also in Ariadna... Yeah that link is the stuff from nightmares I was able to take it with the Nisse because Frostbyte has saturation zones, so all burst was reduced to 1 basically, so the Nisse was splitting against the Core and the HMC, and while B1 is a gamble, none of the pieces had visors, so I think the Nisse was on 16/13 vs 10 against the core and 13 vs 11 against the HMC (I got really lucky all F2F dice went on my direction, except the saves for the HMC which they passed like 10 saves in a turn...). I note that some factions seem to lean into it quite heavily (JSA, Knightly Orders), but from what I understand about the rules, closing to melee range is probably going to open you up to a lot of AROs. I'm vaguely aware that smoke and eclipse grenades are a thing, but using them to cover an advance seems very order-intensive. They've expanded their design team and production teams so I'm not too worried about them losing focus. New Fireteam rules are up and Army now has the Fireteam lists available (had to clear my cache to see the update, just a heads up). Damn the Adepticon seminar! For me the two things: - Haqq vs Steel Phalanx box for Code One. Hard agree. Are there any factions which have particularly good TAGs? Compare this
